

2017 IN REVIEW ARC Newsletter

Letter from the MANAGING DIRECTOR

It is an honour to share ARC's newsletter once again. 2017 can best be summed up as a year of new beginnings – as well as of unexpected challenges.

Our newest campaign - Safety Steps - focuses on safety precautions for children in their environment. This includes a fast changing urban landscape as well as increasingly erratic global weather patterns. We feel that children can be given key tools to deal with the potential risks in their changing surrounds.

Indeed, change has been a dominant feature of this year, some of it unpredictable. At the time of writing this newsletter, our most exciting new campaign, the Childhood Heritage Project, has been put on hold. Having won the bid, ARC had already started work on developing the first children's museum in the Maldives. Located in the only surviving building of the Sultan's Palace of Malé, "Usgekolhu", the museum's aim was for children and their families to come together for cultural education, entertainment and creative play. However, the relevant authorities annulled the agreement only a few days prior to the scheduled opening date, citing changes to the plans for "Usgekolhu". We face a serious setback, which we hope can be resolved satisfactorily.

Despite the disappointment, we will ensure that we move on as best we can, always focusing on our goals with determination and trust.

As in previous years ARC continues to raise awareness on a national scale through our involvement in conferences and committees. Among the events attended was the National Conference on Prevention and Response to Violence Against Children in August, jointly organised by UNICEF and the Ministry of Gender and Family. ARC also attended the first Juvenile Crime Prevention Seminar in November 2017. It is this spirit of empowerment through hope and action that is reflected in the song released for our Hope campaign, "You're Not Alone". The song encourages children to seek help, assures them that they are not alone and that they can get help. We aim to deliver this message to every child who needs it.

Despite the challenges and uncertainties of this year - and no doubt in years to come - ARC aims to lead by example. We will continue to hope and we will continue to act on behalf of the children of our country to ensure their safety, security and enjoyment of life.

I wish to thank our efficient staff and dedicated volunteers for their role in making 2017 a success. Finally, along with our sincere thanks for all your support, I join the Executive Committee members, in wishing you a hopeful, peaceful 2018.
